

Bankers Life
2016 Annual Sales Convention

Code of Conduct

Important Conduct Reminder

At the 2016 Annual Sales Convention, we gather to reward and recognize our organization's top performers. Qualifiers are able to learn from and share best practices with other top performers and enjoy the convention because of their efforts and hard work from the prior year. Attendees also enjoy the privilege of being allowed to invite a spouse/guest to the convention.

As a condition of attending the Annual Sales Convention, Bankers Life requires all attendees to conduct themselves in a dignified and professional manner at all times. Unprofessional behavior, disruptive behavior or behavior that affects the enjoyment or safety of others ("Unacceptable Behavior") will not be tolerated. Bankers Life reserves the sole right to determine Unacceptable Behavior at the Annual Sales Convention and may revoke or terminate any attendee's participation at any time. If an attendee's participation is revoked or terminated for Unacceptable Behavior prior to the completion of the Annual Sales Convention, the attendee shall be responsible for all costs and expenses associated with the revocation or termination. Bankers Life also reserves the right to take any additional legal, disciplinary or other action against an attendee who engages in Unacceptable Behavior.